Rocket Hit U.S. Plane First Try

Khrushchev Gave Order Personally

MOSCOW (AP) — Marshal Andrei A. Grechko told the Supreme Soviet today that the American plane knocked down May 1 was destroyed on the first shot by a "remarkable rocket" fired on the personal orders of Premier Khrushchev.

Grechko charged that the American plane was making an "attempt to probe our defences and test our readiness to give devastating repulse to an aggressor."

MAIN DEFENCE

He said rocket forces such as that which shot down the American plane have "become the main component of our armed forces."

"Separate rocket units have been set up with their own command and separate organizational structure."

Red Star today published a photograph of the wreckage of the plane. The defence ministry newspaper also gave some details of the incident, but made no mention of the pilot.

DAWN ALARM

Red Star gave this account: An anti-aircraft defence unit was alerted by an alarm signal just at dawn on May 1.

"When radio operators received the first reports about the course of an unknown plane which had entered Soviet territory from the south, it became increasingly clear with every passing minute that the plane was an alien machine and that its intentions were hostile."

FLYING HIGH

The plane was flying at a "very great altitude" and at a speed of approximately 540 miles an hour.

The engagement was brief and it was soon learned that the intruder was brought down. The population of nearby villages helped to locate the wreckage quickly."

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev, in a blistering pre-summit attack on the United States, announced Thursday that Russian forces shot down an American plane Sunday on Soviet defence ministry orders. He said Soviet rocketeers are ready to retaliate against future incidents.

The Soviet premier told Parliament that the presence of the American plane over Soviet territory was an "aggressive act" intended to frighten the Russians in advance of the summit.

TAKING ACTION

"One must conclude that aggressive forces in the United States are taking action to interfere with the summit," Khrushchev said.

Khrushchev warned U.S. allies that nations with U.S. bases must realize they can receive retaliatory blows.

Khrushchev blasted President Eisenhower's suggestion that Vice-President Richard Nixon might sit in for him at the summit if the president has to return to Washington. Khrushchev, saying Nixon could hardly be thought of as a man interested in ending the cold war, commented:

GOT CABBAGE

"I am afraid that if Nixon becomes entitled to carry on negotiations at the summit, it would be, as we say in Russia, like sending a goat to take care of the cabbage."

WASHINGTON — The United States indicated Thursday the "bandit" U.S. military plane Soviet Premier Khrushchev boasted was shot down on a mission of intimidation actually was an unarmed weather study craft whose civilian pilot may have blacked out.

... And Then They Were Married

Beaming Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones drew ovation from crowds yesterday as they returned from final wedding rehearsal—their last ride together before their marriage.

WILBURTON, Okla. (UPI) — A series of vicious tornadoes slashed across Oklahoma and part of Arkansas during the night, demolishing homes, killing their victims as they slept, and leaving this town a shambles.

At least 25 persons were known dead in the tornado zone.

Reports from Wilburton indicated 12 persons had been killed and up to 125 persons injured.

As I contemplate it, still smoking Brand "Y," I think it might be easier to quit completely right now than to smoke Brand "X" for the next week.

Maybe the manufacturers of Brand "X" are missing a bet here. Instead of advertising a smoke they should be advertising a cure.

Firestone Heir Suicides

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — Harvey S. Firestone III, brilliant, crippled 32-year-old heir to the Firestone rubber fortune, plunged to his death from his 20th storey room at the swank Havana Hilton Hotel last night, police said.

The police listed the death as an apparent suicide.

Firestone, who was confined to a wheelchair, registered at the hotel yesterday afternoon, accompanied by his male nurse, William J. Didas, 44, and a cousin, David Morgan Firestone.

NOT WITH HIM

Though he was married and the father of a 1½-year-old girl, his family was not with him.

Didas, who had cared for Harvey for the last 10 years, told police that after taking a shower, he walked into the room and saw that his ward was missing.

Crew Leaps

Rammed Ship Sinks

MONTREAL (CP) — The 18-man crew of the Federal Express and nine stevedores escaped unhurt Thursday night after the coastal freighter sank in Montreal harbour, rammed at her berth by a deep-sea freighter.

The ship's hawsers were severed when struck by the 9,800-ton Greek freighter Polaris and she drifted into a second ocean vessel—the Thorshape—before going down.

Both larger ships remained afloat.

Most of the crew and longshoremen were able to make it to the gangway or leap to the wharf. The remainder were hauled to safety by tugs.

Cause of the mishap was not immediately known.

Countless Thousands Throng Streets London Roars Its Joy As Princess, Tony Wed

Bridegroom Slips Away To Attend Stag Party

LONDON (CP) — Princess Margaret married commoner Antony Armstrong-Jones at noon (4 a.m. PST) today.

London roared a mighty salute to the princess on her wedding day.

Countless thousands thronged the streets as the hands of the clock passed midnight Thursday. They milled around Westminster Abbey, the palaces and Clarence House, the home of Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth.

While the celebrating swirled on unabated in the streets, Margaret dined quietly with Queen Elizabeth II and the Queen mother.

Armstrong-Jones slipped away in the early evening for a stag party. He returned to Buckingham Palace shortly before midnight.

NOT DISCLOSED

The site of the bachelor party was not disclosed. Ronald Armstrong-Jones, the bridegroom's father, said only a few friends attended.

Thursday, the princess and her fiance, a former photographer to the Royal Court, went through a solemn rehearsal at the abbey, where the Archbishop of Canterbury pronounces them man and wife. Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip looked on.

LIKE CORONATION

"It's like the coronation," said a harassed policeman.

The great squares in front of Buckingham Palace, the Abbey, the House of Parliament, and Clarence House were packed with people.

Knots of determined spectators—some with food, drink, and the family dog—bedded down along the route. A few took position more than 24 hours before the start of the ceremony.

MALL CLOGGED

Traffic jams clogged the Mall and the area around Westminster Abbey as sightseers moved in to see the bright decorations; police had to link arms to hold back crowds in some spots.

It was a rose red city. The Princess was christened Margaret Rose and roses are the theme of the street decorations.

In all shades from white to coral and deep crimson, they entwined lamp posts along the route from the palace to the 900-year-old abbey.

WHITE BANNERS

White banners waved with the monogram "M-A" — for Margaret and Antony. Flags of all descriptions fluttered gaily.

Inside the abbey Thursday the long blue carpet, that stretches the length of the aisle was swept in final preparation. The spindly-legged gold chairs that will hold 2,068 guests were dusted again.

WELSH GOLD

Margaret's wedding ring has been made from a nugget of Welsh gold—the same nugget used for the wedding ring of her mother and sister. Descriptions of her wedding dress have been published far and wide, but are still secret officially.

Once the archbishop pronounces them man and wife, Margaret and Antony rise and the two kneeling benches are removed. The archbishop then conducts them to the high altar, about 10 yards away.

Even Skies Smiling

LONDON (UPI) — Even the weather of rainy London smiled for Princess Margaret today.

Forecast for the wedding: a rare English spring day with lots of sunshine, no rain and temperatures in the 70s.

Six Sailors

Wedding Delays Weddings

LONDON (Reuters) — Six crew members of the Royal Yacht Britannia, which takes Princess Margaret and her husband on their honeymoon cruise today, have had to postpone their own weddings because of the voyage.

When the newly-married couple tour the yacht, they will probably see a cartoon by a Royal Marine private who is the ship's comic artist. It shows the Royal couple coming up the gangplank watched by six tearful waiting brides, heavily veiled in black.

UNSEEN WATCHERS

The princess and Antony Armstrong-Jones will be watched over by unseen "guardian angels" in the form of reconnaissance aircraft as they cruise toward their Caribbean honeymoon.

The Britannia will have no naval escort when it leaves London. But long-range Shackleton planes, flying high on their normal sea patrols, will watch the yacht's progress on their radar screens and will be able to warn of any approaching hazards.

The Shackletons, based at Gibraltar and in southwest England, have a range of more than 3,600 miles.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

FUNNY JACK the used-car man won't like this. His grin will vanish into his mustache.

"Why can't cars have log-books, in which mileage, repairs and changes of ownership are recorded?" asks a reader.

Why, indeed? I understand they do it in Britain. The log-book travels with each car from factory to scrap-heap, in the glove compartment. The law demands it.

Every time the garageman cuts a rotten piece out of the engine and sticks a patch on, he records what he has done in the log—providing that he has the patience to dig through the cigarette cartons, candy wrappers, bits of Kleenex, and old lipstick cases, and find the log.

Since the log is a mechanical, rather than a human, document, it leaves much unsaid. Nobody can learn from the log whether the gas tank really was dry, that moonlit night.

"Driving privileges denied to Mary Brown, wife, for one month, as result of crumpled fender, dented hydrant, for which wife to blame. Signed, Jason Brown, Captain."

No entries like that one, either, in the automobile log book.

But the record of the car itself is marked down in full, from first scratch to the day it gives its death-rattle and the traditional old lady who has been its sole owner, pushes it on to Funny Jack's used car lot.

The car dealer really should be grateful for the dossier that is tucked among the trash in the glove compartment. After all, it prevents the old lady from cheating HIM.

But it also restrains the dealer from pulling a David Harum trade on his customers.

Luckily, most used car dealers are honest. So, when some member of the B.C. legislature proposes an automobile log-book law, the idea will raise a deafening chorus of support from the solid dealers.

Scarcely audible through the clamor will be a thin whine of protest from Funny Jack and a few other rogues.

Drugs Discussed

Addicts Formed By Treatment

OTTAWA (CP) — About 275 Canadians are narcotics addicts as a result of medical treatment with habit-forming drugs, the Commons estimates committee was told yesterday.

R. C. Hammond, chief of the health department's narcotics control division, also said Canada has a number of doctors, pharmacists and nurses who have become addicts partly because they have ready access to the drugs.

Outside the committee, an official said the department estimates their number at between 150 and 200.

Dr. R. G. Ratz, head of the department's medical advisory services, said synthetic narcotics were becoming a "seriously large" addiction problem.

70 Feet of Totem Pole On Its Way to Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seven feet of boy scout gift left here Thursday night for Ottawa.

The gift is a totem pole valued at more than $8,000, from British Columbia Boy Scouts to the new national scout headquarters now being built in Ottawa.

The huge pole was carved by Chief Mungo Martin of Victoria, last of the great carvers of the Kwakiutl Indian Nation, who also fashioned the Royal Totem presented by B.C. to Queen Elizabeth during the Province's Centennial year in 1958.

Carved from a cedar log cut on the west coast of Vancouver Island, the totem depicts six main figures—a raven, man, grizzly bear, cannibal woman, killer whale and beaver. All are typical crests of the Kwakiutl people and neighboring B.C. tribes.

The totem was conveyed from Victoria by special barge to the mainland. Two powerful cranes were then required to hoist the pole onto two CNR flat cars being used for the 2,800-mile trip.

Cost of the totem pole's production was borne by the B.C. Totem Pole Preservation Committee and the East Asiatic Company (B.C.) Ltd., which donated it to the Boy Scouts' B.C.-Yukon provincial council.

Report Denied By MacMillan

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Citizen says H. R. MacMillan, British Columbia industrialist, has agreed to be a member of the proposed royal commission on government economy.

In Vancouver, Mr. MacMillan's secretary said he had advised her that the report was "not true" and declined further comment.

By EDNA BLAKELY
TORONTO (CP) — If Mother's Day Sunday, May 8, is to be a truly festive occasion for mother then the family should prepare dinner on that day. And of course, mother shouldn't be allowed to do the dishes.

A menu, planned especially to be made by dad and the children, has been worked out by the consumer section of Canada's department of agriculture.

Here's the menu: tomato juice, baked marinated chicken, baked potatoes, buttered corn niblets, spring salad, apple jelly, hot tea biscuits, canned peaches and with brown sugar crunch.

Preparations start early in the day when the tomato juice, apple jelly and peaches are put in the refrigerator. The potatoes can be scrubbed and the salad vegetables prepared.

The marinade should be made well before dinner and paprika, 1 tsp. thyme, sage, poured over the chicken an hour before cooking. Then make the brown sugar crunch. An hour before dinner time, put the chicken and the medium-sized peeled potatoes in a 425-degree oven.

While the chicken is baking, set the table, finish the salad, heat canned or frozen corn, open and serve the tomato juice and peaches and make up fresh tea biscuits. They can be ready-made and heated, ready to cook packaged tea biscuits or a mix that can be popped into the oven during the last 15 minutes that the chicken is cooking.

Four pounds of cut-up chicken will make four to six servings. The chicken should be washed in cold water and wrapped in a dry cloth for a few minutes.

The marinade is simple. Combine 1 cup water, 1 cup white sugar, 1/2 cup butter or white oil, 2 1/2 tbsps. salt, 1 tsp. whipping cream, 2 tbsps. brown sugar and a few drops of vanilla.

rosemary or Worcestershire sauce in a saucepan and bring to a boil. Pour over the chicken pieces in a bowl or glass dish and let stand for one hour, turning the chicken over at half time if it's not entirely covered by the marinade.

Drain off the marinade and arrange the chicken, skin side down, in a greased, shallow baking pan. Bake uncovered in a 425-degree oven for 30 minutes. Turn chicken skin side up, baste with the liquid that has collected in the pan and bake a further 15 minutes.

Baste again and continue to bake until the pieces are tender and golden brown. It should take about another 15 minutes.

The brown sugar crunch is also easy to make. The ingredients are: 2 tbsps. butter, 1 1/2 tbsps. brown sugar, 2 tbsps. chopped nuts, 1/2 cup any ready-to-eat cereal, 1/2 cup whipping cream, 2 tbsps. brown sugar and a few drops of vanilla.

Melt butter in saucepan. Add the 1 1/2 tbsps. sugar and nuts and heat over low heat for two minutes. Add cereal, coarsely crushed. It's important to cool it thoroughly at this point. Combine whipping cream, 2 tbsps. sugar and vanilla. Whip until thick. Fold in half the nut mixture.

Pour into freezer tray and top with remaining nut mixture. Chill in freezing compartment for one hour. Makes four to six servings.

Premier Held In Student Mob

ANKARA (UPI) — A white-faced Premier Adnan Menderes personally grappled with student demonstrators in a mob shouting for his resignation yesterday and dramatically demanded of them, "Why don't you kill me?"

Menderes and two of his cabinet ministers accosted 500 students as the youths gathered for a pre-arranged demonstration involving thousands on Ataturk Boulevard.

When the group recognized him, some applauded him but others began yelling: "Resign, resign."

Menderes twice waded angrily into the crowd, shouting back at them, and seized one youth by the collar and reportedly slapped others.

Aides hustled him into a car belonging to a newsman but as the car started to pull away, Menderes nervously said to the driver, "Let me get out and explain to them." He got out and went back into the crowd.

Eyewitnesses said one youth put his hand on Menderes' arm but there was no attack on him. He was rushed into another car.

Some 50 persons were detained by police and troops who dispersed the crowds.

Car-Dumping RCAF Officer Not Charged

OTTAWA (UPI) — No legal action has been taken against the commanding officer of RCAF station Uplands who was alleged to have ordered the dumping of cars belonging to airmen over a 20-foot embankment, Eggn Chambers said yesterday.

The parliamentary secretary to Defence Minister George Pearkes said in Commons that Ottawa city police were investigating the incident. Chambers said the cars "appeared to have been abandoned by their owners."

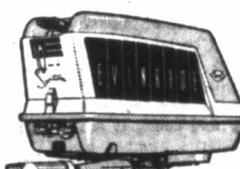

They were taken off the RCAF station because they were not equipped with 1960 licence plates, he said. Some were towed to a service station and others "in a very poor condition," to the RCAF dump.

An Uplands airman Monday was reported to have ordered legal action against his CO, Group Captain C. H. Mussels, after he ordered the cars dumped into a gravel pit.

Schooling Saps Curiosity

VANCOUVER (CP) — The dean of physics at the University of British Columbia says Canada's schools destroy the natural curiosity and imagination of the young and turn out a race of conformists.

"Where are the angry young men today?" Dr. Gordon Shrum asked in an interview yesterday. "They lost all their imaginative thinking on the way through school."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation last night won most of the 1960 Ohio State University radio-TV awards.

He said children entering school are full of imagination and curiosity, but when they leave, it is all gone.

He suggested these could be the curiosity-killers of schools:

Having to conform to school rules and regulations;

Being taught by unimaginative teachers and professors;

Following a system of education built up over the years.

He admitted he does not know the cure.

"It may be there are some unnecessary rules. I am not suggesting throwing the rule book out of the window—I am today to get a new approach all for a reasonable amount. It is vital in research work."

He said schools today are challenging the gifted and superior students more than ever before.

He said imagination and fore, Dr. Robert F. Sharp, superintendent, commented.

"We could use some imagination in international affairs should never be satisfied."

The Royal Wedding

AS these words roll off the presses London is marshalling itself for its greatest social and public event of the year—the wedding of Princess Margaret. Tens of thousands are lining the streets agog in expectation of the pageantry which Britain does so well and which in this instance is mounted to celebrate the nuptials of a favorite princess. This morning, a few hours later, Canadians themselves will share in the wedding ceremony through the magic of television.

It is surely a reflection of the majesty and worth of the British monarchy that all the world, it seems, has its eyes focused this moment on Westminster Abbey, that venerable grey pile which has enclosed so much history and momentous occasion. No other comparable event would invite one tithe of the widespread interest that has accompanied this royal romance. A bride is always a cherished being on her wedding day but there is an especial patina to the ceremony of today that transcends even the customary flavor of a royal wedding.

Chiefly of course this is inherent in the principals concerned, the joining in holy matrimony of a princess of the realm and a commoner. Gone happily are the days when princesses were betrothed for dynastic or political purposes—at least where the House of Windsor is concerned—and today's ceremony reveals afresh that, like brides of lesser station, a British princess is free to follow the dictates of her heart. Coupled with the natural interest always taken in the Queen's vivacious and popular sister, this alone invests the wedding of Princess Margaret with unusual luster.

It will certainly be the wish of countless Commonwealth peoples that the Princess Margaret and Mr. Anthony Armstrong-Jones will enjoy the health, happiness and good fortune that one bespeaks for all brides and grooms. Affairs of state impinge deeply on the lives of all royal persons, so that their destiny is not without restraints from which others are free. In this instance however universal goodwill and warmth of feeling will buttress the future of this particular royal lady and the man she has chosen to be her husband. May their union be blessed.

A Reasonable Decision

THE city council has reached a reasonable, middle of the road decision on Victoria's 1960 budget. A tax rate of 52¢ mills will neither cut civic services to the bone nor boost this year's operating costs into an unexpected shock for the taxpayers. The mill rate involves a three-mill advance over the 1959 budget, but the reasons for that have been thoroughly canvassed. One is glad that the City arrived at this decision without eliminating James Bay firehall, which would have been a retrograde step in an area with high industrial and waterfront values which must be protected against hazard. Some sacrifices in public works there will be, but not to an extent sufficient to cripple forward plans.

While the rate bylaw remains to be presented, read three times and ratified in two council sessions, the unanimity of the council's closing discussions suggests that there will be no further changes in the budget. It will be left to departmental heads for the most part to apportion the percentage reduction of their yearly estimates as presented; a function they can perform better than the policy-making council itself. At 52¢ mills Victoria's tax rate will not be out of line in any respect with what has been happening throughout the province in municipal circles. The consequences of growth are everywhere, and one of the first of them is the emergent demands for more and better service. Financial ability pulls the other way, so that a workable compromise is the best that can reasonably be expected.

Examining the direct causes of mounting municipal costs in British Columbia it is becoming clear that, even with the best of intentions, provincial assistance under one head or another is not yet abreast of the steadily rising obligation of these centres under provincial laws. School costs are a prime example, but there are others under welfare, health, arterial roads and several other headings. In the long run it is the municipalities who come first into contact with the public, with all of its changing needs. The degree to which this is imposing obligations on cities, towns and villages in B.C. beyond their ordinary fiscal capacities is the measure of a widening gap that one day soon will have to be closed. Taxes come from people, not from formulas.

Planting Seedling Conifers

WHILE the total cut of merchantable timber from Vancouver Island's softwood stands in the last 50 years is immeasurably greater than consistent and sustained effort to replace it, all steps leading in the direction of practical replanting can be sincerely welcomed. In addition to what other timber firms have in hand, Crown Zellerbach's program in the Courtenay and Ladysmith areas is promising. More than a million seedling conifers have been set out in the two areas, covering some 2,000 acres of natural forest land. Similar programs have been under way by other firms, and notably so by the MacMillan, Bloedel interests.

If British Columbia is to maintain its forest-management policies in treating timber growth as a cropable yield which can be kept in perpetuity, aggressive replanting will need to be part of the effort. The forest-management licence, with its stated rights of renewal cutting, affects those regions where mature timber still stands in some volume. The cut-over areas inside licence limits are capable of reseeding themselves; but the old bald patches from other days in sectors where the land is suitable for timber production will take a deal of filling in. That is true not alone of Vancouver Island, heavily denuded on its east coast, but also of all forest areas in the province. A firm start is the thing, and happily today that is more generally understood.

Interpreting the News

Vast Food Plan Mooted

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE Western drive against hunger and poverty is becoming crystallized in the greatest wheat deal of its kind in the world.

This is the food-for-peace wheat and rice agreement now being worked out between the United States and India.

Over a four-year period the U.S. would ship to India a total of some 600,000,000 bushels of wheat and 1,000,000 tons of rice, part for immediate consumption and part for stockpiling against future emergency needs.

To acquire this wheat and rice from its own farmers, the U.S. government will have to spend an estimated $2,000,000,000 including price support, but will charge India only current world prices, about $1,276,000,000.

Thus, in this initial transaction, the U.S. treasury will lose $700,000,000 or more.

Sources say that of the total payment about 20 per cent will be turned back to India in economic grants to help build grain storage mills and irrigation projects.

The U.S. has a huge wheat surplus and therefore her farmers will benefit by removal of some of the glut from potential world markets.

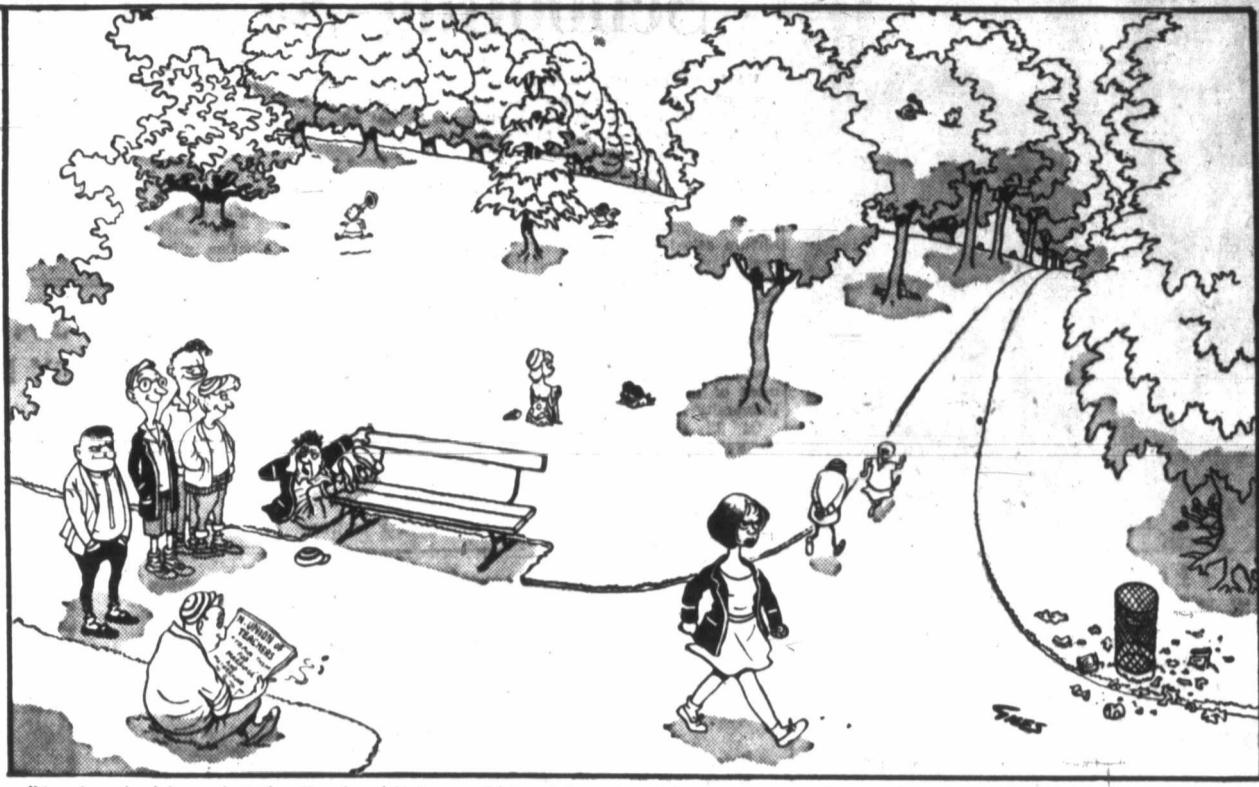

Undoubtedly the Indian deal would provide an illustration of what the West could do to prevent, as India's food minister S. K. Patil has stated, the growth of two worlds, one rich and the other sunk in poverty. Patil is visiting Ottawa now.

Canada provides a good deal of aid to India, Pakistan and Ceylon through her annual Colombo Plan contributions.

Meanwhile there are indications of the interest in the deal of Canada and Australia, two major wheat exporters, in line with protection of commercial markets. The acquisition of huge amounts of American wheat on almost give-away terms tends to reduce the immediate possibilities of increasing commercial sales.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

ON its 50th birthday the RCN this week rededicated itself to "the service of God, Queen, and country."

The trinity is one.

Today, there being both royal and naval occasions at hand, it might not be inappropriate to print a shortened version of a column written at the time of the coronation in 1953.

It ran:

The captain glanced round the wardroom, raised his glass, and offered the traditional toast: "Gentlemen, the Queen."

"The Queen," came the deep-throated response.

It was the evening of the Spithead Review and by Her Majesty's command we were splicing the mainbrace.

Some moments live in memory and this will be one that will remain in mine.

The captain had entered the wardroom—ship's captains do not invade their officers' precincts except for special reasons—to convey his appreciation of the fine work of the ship during the review. I can verify the validity of his commendation, for I had a good view of the Magnificent as she cheered the passage of the Royal yacht.

Canada's aircraft carrier looked every inch a ship and her company true sailors of the realm.

Naval officers in serious mein are a goodly sight and this was a solemn moment. So many young or youngish faces upturned as they held their glasses high, loyally pledging their newly-crowned sovereign — and a Queen at that.

One felt that the best of each individual was evoked by this time-honored tribute.

That had been a significant feature of Queen Elizabeth's coronation. If a monarchy is to be sustained, or be worthwhile, it must be such as will inspire a degree of selflessness above and beyond the common round. It must touch the human spirit. It must impinge on the inner core of faith that is to be found in most men.

Traditionally the Navy is at the sovereign's service, no matter who the sovereign in particular person may be, but as "The Queen" rang through the wardroom this evening quite obviously there was a special elation and evocation to the toast.

One could sense that if, these young officers were to engage tomorrow in an emergent venture of the realm they would do so with greater zeal because of the young woman who commanded their homage at that.

The youth and sex of the Commonwealth's newest monarch undoubtedly has vested this coronation with more than usual appeal. There has been a drama and romance about the crowning of a young queen that pique is much greater than would be associated with the coronation of a middle-aged king.

In her youth the Queen symbolizes the birth of a new and hopeful era.

This is what has added to the possessive pride with which coronation viewers have regarded their Queen.

All these things were present, articulate but substantial nevertheless, in the atmosphere of the wardroom as these holders of Her Majesty's commission stood to attention and held high their glasses.

"The Queen."

As events in Esquimalt this week indicate, naval sentiment and loyalty remain unimpaired.

Cold War on the Fishing Front

By JOHN F. GIBSON

ice factories, freezing and processing plants and dock facilities. The chances are that the government would have to subsidize the industry until new fishing grounds are discovered.

The Pacific nations, Canada, United States, Japan, Russia and Peru, have their own problems. A six-mile limit would rob the American industry of many ground fish now caught around Canadian shores. The fact that many American boats now venture inside the Canadian three-mile limit is something that must be accepted as part of an age-old game. Paper agreements are all very fine, but Geneva is a long way from the White Sea or the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Russia and Japan are consistently arguing over the amount of Asiatic salmon which should be landed. The Russians prefer to catch salmon close to land, right alongside the canneries, so to speak. The Japanese fish in open water and could, if not controlled, stop a large number of fish from reaching the Russian spawning grounds.

Meanwhile the Americans and the Russians have failed to agree over another problem. Pacific and Asiatic salmon mingle in the central Pacific roughly on longitude 175 degrees west. The North Pacific Fisheries Commission have set that as the line beyond which the Japanese deep-water fishing fleet may not operate. The Americans are trying to move this line 10 degrees further west to ensure that the Japanese are not able to catch any of the Pacific salmon. Canada has, so far, agreed with the Japanese that the present dividing line is fair. Russia is not yet a full member of the commission.

If Iceland succeeds in enforcing her 12-mile limit Britain will have to decide what to do with 250 deep-sea trawlers, each worth $800,000, and the 6,000 men who man them. The 'distant water' section of the industry would be threatened together with the fishing factories.

Apartheid Debate

House at Its Best

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

But he accepted that an official frontal attack by the Canadian parliament might do more harm than good and did not insist on it.

He was in agreement with the prime minister on that point.

Harold Winch of Vancouver East, speaking for the CCF group, was prepared to go a long way farther than the other parties felt desirable. He would give South Africa the works.

But he did not insist and his speech did not break the statesmanlike continuity of the debate.

Mr. Diefenbaker used a considerable part of his speech to praise the statesmanlike attitude of the opposition leader.

Nothing happened, and nothing was supposed to have happened. Except that all parties had a chance to express themselves on a delicate and critical subject and without recourse to efforts to reap party advantage.

It is typical of most English-speaking parliaments and congresses that when they get down to delicate international problems they forget political advantage and resort to realism.

Opposition leader Pearson started with an address that was a model of realism and acceptance of facts worthy of a Nobel Peace Prize-winner and a man of wide experience.

He hates the situation in South Africa and wants the people of that country to know that this hatred and disapproval is felt by the government and people of Canada.

the cold war around the coasts. The Canadian industry is now of such a size that it cannot afford to be negative or sentimental about the future. The Americans will fight hard to retain their present position. They have already accused Canada of not worrying about the security of salmon stocks and of catching fish provided by the American taxpayers. These statements are inaccurate, almost the reverse of the truth, in fact. But does the delegate from 'Neutralia' know this?

So far as Peru is concerned the important subject is fish meal. Reduction plants in Canada, South Africa and Japan are closing down while the Peruvian industry thrives. A large number of new boats operate in the Humboldt Current. Catches of herring, anchovies, whale and bonito result in exports of oil, fish meal, canned fish, etc. Costs are low.

The whole subject of territorial waters may now be referred to the United Nations. It may, in the future, become one of the vital subjects of discussion, for the sea and the sea bed can provide men with food and minerals. One day, perhaps, the oceans will be divided among the nations as are the continents now.

It may be that Britain and Iceland on one hand, American and Canada on the other, will find ways of solving their problems without having to meet the rest of the world at Geneva. The future of the B.C. fishing industry need not depend on the whims of the Levantine states.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

SOME weeks ago the Packsack referred to the fact that property belongs even to the wealthiest and most acquisitive only for such time as the owner lives. It is all, house, land, money, furniture, books, golf clubs, carports, hats, overcoats, boots, everything, going to belong to somebody else in due course.

This sentiment brings a letter from a reader in Alberta.

"During the war, three other officers and I called on the late R. E. Bennett, Lord Bennett was then, on his lordly estate in the south of England not far from where we were camped. Lord Bennett showed us graciously over the beautiful big house and gardens and told us its history, what previous nobles had owned the property over the past centuries.

"He then took us to a balcony and showed us in the distance the outer boundaries of his estate, east, north, and west. And when he paused, and we gazed at the domain, a captain in our party asked innocently:

"Is there no one who will own it next?"

Lord Bennett turned a dark turk's head crimson and escorted us to the front portico.

Twinkling Neons

Congratulations to Ald. Edgeland for his integrity in upholding the democratic principle in asking for opinions preparatory to the bylaw governing signs.

It is difficult to reconcile contemporary architects' views whose business is creative, therefore new or modern and, inexplicably, their backward thrust invoking bygone days with rough furrows of yesteryear contrasting the easy and smooth surface, if somewhat apprehensive modern age. Tourists, having been conditioned to signs in their home locality, are unlikely to be offended here; providing such notices are tactfully positioned yet conspicuous in communication according to the weight of individual requirements.

Signd are more numerous, retrospectively they have become more attractive. The twinkling eye of the neon beckon smilingly through the darkened city's face, and countering the loss of daytime lustre. Billboards resemble the 'pin-ups' of modern times, their impact is diversional, and a not unpleasant one where the vast majority detract from otherwise derelict plots, deteriorating walls, and elsewhere giving color to a drab, uninteresting background. Excepting possibly borderline instances I have not observed any incongruously placed.

My hunch is most people do not consider signs objectionable and are reasonably satisfied. If so, radical changes are unwarranted. Future regulations should provide for maximum freedom desirable with the least inconvenience to everyone.

After 45 Years

I have been interested in Terry Hammond trying to kick the cigarette habit.

I have no complaint as I have been a non-smoker for 67 years. Fifty years ago I met my wife; she was smoking when 17 years of age, unusual in those days. She smoked one packet a day sometimes more. I did not object at any time.

Five years ago she developed a bad cold and I had to call in a doctor. She asked the doctor if she quit smoking would that help and he said, "Well, I smoke."

The doctor made out a prescription and phoned it to the drug store. When the prescription arrived it cost nearly $10. When my wife heard the cost for such a small amount of drug she said, "I think it is cheaper to quit smoking." From that hour until now she has not smoked one cigarette. She attends meetings at which most of the women smoke; they try to get her to smoke but she refuses. They say, "I'll bet you smoke on the sly," but she quits from that hour.

It shows what willpower can do if you make up your mind to quit after 45 years of smoking.

In Money for Bomarc

WASHINGTON (CP)—The House of Representatives approved a cut of $294,000,000 Thursday from the amount asked by the administration for the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile.

The cut was recommended last week by the appropriations committee, which approved only $50,000,000 to continue development tests if the United States Air Force deems it necessary.

No attempt was made on the floor of the House to upset the recommendation of the appropriations committee, but supporters of the Bomarc project are expected to try to restore some of the money when the bill comes up in the Senate.

Canada was to get two squadrons of the Bomarc for defence sites under construction at North Bay, Ont., and Mont Laurier, Que. But the action of the House Thursday raises grave doubts whether the Bomarc bases will ever be completed.

Ashes of 2,000 Bodies a Problem

VANCOUVER (CP)—What should happen to a person's ashes after cremation? In fact what to do with the cremated remains of 2,000 bodies left unclaimed here since the beginning of the First World War?

These questions were considered Wednesday by the Public Utilities Commission. On the question of disposal of ashes G. A. Arnold, president of Forest-Lawn and Ocean View Cemeteries asked for a ban on the scattering of human ashes. He said it is a revolting practice to release cremated remains to the general public.

"It's a sign of moral degradation of our race to throw

Dad into the garbage can. I know it's being done today—not in the ash can—but thrown away."

PUC chairman Dr. H. F. Angus said "it's a little suspect for the owners of cemeteries and crematoriums to ask for this restriction in the public interest."

William Simpson, director of Vancouver Crematorium Ltd., said 2,000 urns of ashes have been abandoned in storage since 1914 by relatives who cannot be traced.

He said the company was willing to dispose of them at its own expense, provided they were scattered at sea—the most economical means.

Suggestions made at the hearing included: bury them; scatter them in Stanley Park; scatter them at sea; see that it does not happen again. The last suggestion was made by the commission.

Danger for Hypnosis

Back to Quacks

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A Canadian doctor warns that so many untrained doctors are using hypnosis that there is danger "it will once more be relegated to the quacks."

Dr. Bernard B. Raginsky of Montreal, North American president on clinical hypnosis for the Pan-American Medical Association meeting here, said that if properly handled by capable and trained men, hypnosis will find "its useful and permanent place in medicine."

He said it can best be used in the field of internal medicine. Its use in mental rehabilitation needed more study.

"Hypnosis, because it is such a complex tool, should not be used when simpler methods are found to be adequate," he added.

Dr. Louis Kosminsky of West New York, N.J., told the congress that "hypnosis has come of age" and is fully recognized "as a medical tool

Pheasant Egg

Hatching Goes Scientific

Carolyn Brown, 12, 3045 Beach Drive, is now incubating her pheasant egg in a scientific manner.

A two-egg chicken incubator, made for children who want to hatch Easter eggs, which was ordered by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. R. Brown, arrived here Wednesday from Seattle.

The small incubator has replaced a string of Christmas tree lights which had been rigged up to keep the egg warm. If the egg is fertile and all goes well, it should hatch around May 17 to 20.

The lone egg was given to Carolyn by Jack Housez, 4030 Locarno, after a pheasant flew through a window of his home and deposited the egg on the kitchen floor.

Water Rate Boost Bid Given PUC

A Greater Victoria water board application to increase water rates outside the municipal area has been submitted to the Public Utilities Commission, an official said yesterday, and the new rates if approved will go into effect Sept. 1.

The PUC is expected to hold a public hearing if protests are received after the proposed rates have been advertised.

The rate increase—about $15 a year for the average customer—would affect about 4,000 water board customers outside Greater Victoria, mostly in View Royal, Colwood and Langford. In Greater Victoria, the wholesale water rate to municipalities was increased 30 per cent from Jan. 1.

A in its own right and not as a developed at an explosive rate. If it continues at this pace—and it appears that it will—there is a probability that hypnosis will once more be relegated to the quacks, as it has been so many times before during its periodic rise and fall in favor and out of favor in medicine."

He said only well-trained doctors should use hypnosis, and then only in specific cases.

Sailors Fix Menu While Captain Shops for TV Set

PORTE ARTHUR, Ont. (UPI) — British seamen aboard the grain carrier Rookwood began composing menus yesterday while their captain went shopping for a television set.

This was the outcome of a five-day strike by 18 seamen aboard the 6,000-ton British freighter who went on strike demanding Canadian wages.

NORAD Chief Backs Out Of Speech

WASHINGTON (CP) — The head of the North American Air Defence command has turned down a speaking engagement in Canada because he feels his speech might be interpreted as military pressure on Canadian and U.S. policy-makers.

Gen. Lawrence S. Kuter gave this as the reason he has decided to renege on an invitation he had previously accepted to speak at the RCAF Association annual dinner at Toronto May 20.

Businessmen Plan Brentwood Buses

Application for a bus franchise to serve Brentwood and the Deep Cove area is being considered by a group of Saanich businessmen.

Members of Central Saanich Chamber of Commerce pledged strong support this week when told of the plan by president Charles Harris.

Mr. Harris said he learned of the plan recently but did not wish to name any of the men involved at this time.

The bus service would be arranged to act as a feeder for the Vancouver Island Coach Lines mainline (Patricia Bay) service.

Mr. Harris said there are a lot of elderly retired people

B.C. Labor To Boycott South Africa

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 130,000-member British Columbia Federation of Labor yesterday ordered its 263 member unions to have nothing to do with South African produce or products.

Secretary Pat O'Neal announced the instructions and added that the federation will make representations to the B.C. government on South African wines and liquors on the shelves of government liquor control board stores.

The boycott, in protest against South Africa's racial policies, was requested of all Canadian unions at the recent Canadian Labor Congress convention in Montreal.

Body Brought to Surface

Trapped Youth Dead

IRONTON, Ohio (UPI) — A crowd of about 800 spectators, including the father, face.

The body of Warren Payne, trapped more than 27 hours Rev. Minor Payne, and three brothers and four sisters, were found in a dry well in the backyard of his house at nearby Burlingame, was brought to the surface last night by rescue workers who labored around the clock.

The strike ended, however, with their wages remaining at $102 a month, about half of what Canadian seamen earn for the same job.

The vessel's skipper, Capt. Albert Dover, said the question of wages will be taken up later this season, but meanwhile there will be several concessions affecting the men's living conditions.

The men struck for Canadian wages to meet the cost of living in this country. Their ship will work in Canadian waters for the rest of the season.

Dover said the men will get a TV set, the crew's washing machine will be repaired and a hot plate installed for the night meals. Other concessions to make the ship a home away from home will include a special mess man to wash the dishes and perform other minor kitchen chores, previously handled by the crew during their off-duty hours. Also, the men will suggest menus to the cook.

They also said Khrushchev may have taken Kozlov out of his government post and raised him to a Communist party secretary of seven men so he could keep an eye on other members of the group.

More than 50 workers, using their hands, shovels and power equipment, fought the shift.

ing sand and dirt throughout the night and day in an effort to reach Payne. He was buried some 35 feet down in the hole, which he and his father had just dug for a cesspool.

Kozlov Successor To Khrushchev?

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

American officials regard the promotion of Soviet Deputy Premier Frol Kozlov as a step toward making him the eventual successor of Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

They also said Khrushchev

Visiting Victoria

Crack Pilot Jet Teacher

A veteran pilot of passenger jets, who has a huge, four-engined Boeing 707 at his disposal, flew into Victoria this week—by TCA.

Capt. Peter Mains Smith came to Victoria to see his sister, Mrs. Don Bourne, 1198 St. Patrick Street.

FIRST SINCE WAR

For the brother and sister it was the first meeting since "sometime during the Second World War," ignoring a five-minute meeting five years ago.

A squadron leader in the RAF during the Second World War, Capt. Mains Smith had a pleasant surprise waiting for him in Victoria.

RAF NAVIGATOR

He met Allan Cox, 1050 Monterey, who was his navigator in the RAF. Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Bourne met in hospital and through their friendship they found the connection between Mr. Cox and Capt. Mains Smith.

Capt. Mains Smith has been in Seattle teaching other BOAC pilots how to fly Boeing 707s and today they will fly three of the planes on the first leg of their journey to England.

Eventually, BOAC will take delivery of 14 of the planes for its operations.

Capt. Mains Smith, a keen fisherman, went salmon fishing yesterday morning. He caught an eight-pound cod and had it for dinner before he left Victoria.

Canada has been a frequent critic of U.S. barter deals on the grounds they threatened this country's commercial markets.

The new agreement provided, however, that India must purchase 400,000 tons of wheat a year from commercial sources. Churchill told the Commons, "This was a 'realistic' figure, I said."

This commercial market will be open to Canada.

Stewardship meeting to discuss the past year's operation of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Marketing Board will be held Tuesday at Institute Hall, East Saanich Road, Keating, at 8 p.m.

MAN-MADE FIBRES

Production of synthetic fibres in Britain reached a record of more than 50,000,000 pounds in the first two months of 1960.

Senate Passes Sub Loan Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a bill authorizing the loan of an American submarine to Canada for West Coast service.

A Senate armed services committee report accompanying the bill said the Canadian navy is considering plans to build its own submarine fleet.

Berry Crop Good?

Increased production of strawberries, loganberries and blackberries on Vancouver Island in 1960 is foreseen in an early season estimate by the horticultural branch of the B.C. agriculture department.

The estimate anticipates strawberry production totalling 1,100,000 pounds this year, compared with 1,040,660 last year; loganberry production of 1,275,000 pounds, against 1,191,300, and blackberry production of 65,000 pounds, against 61,000, but foresees a reduction in gooseberry and cherry production.

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

It was early September and the foliage was on the trees when Floyd Patterson pitched camp in La Ronda, an abandoned roadhouse that may have looked like a gingerbread castle when it was built by the bandsman, Enrique Madriguera. The woods changed color and autumn slid into winter and for a while the place was snowbound. Month after month Patterson stayed on, running, sparring, planning for a fight which, it often seemed, he wasn't even going to get.

Now contracts have been signed for his heavyweight championship rematch with Ingemar Johansson. The crocus is up, the leaves and the sportswriters are returning to the woods. Today's noon sunshine gleamed on the fighter's satiny black Continental Mark V convertible, complete with air conditioning and white telephone. The New York license plates, IEP, showed their owner was in residence but visitors had to hammer long and loud on the front door with the knob broken off, for the camp sleeps late after 6.00 a.m. roadwork.

At length the former champion came down from his sleeping quarters, past a crayon sign reading: "Anyone found up these stairs will be blamed for anything missing, past, present, or future. This means U."

He looked big and he said he was, maybe ten pounds bigger than the man Johansson dropped seven times for a knockout last June.

The Cost of Preparedness

"Seven months you've been here," a visitor said. "Have you any idea what it's cost you so far?"

"Well," Floyd said, "$150 a week rent, food about $200 a week."

"More than 6,000 gallons of fuel oil," said Dan Florio, the trainer. Sitting in the kitchen, they tucked off items enough to reach about $12,000 not counting wages, fees to sparring partners, incidentals.

"Do you feel a great sense of relief now that the match is made?" the fighter was asked. "Were there times when that phone rang and they told you the fight was off again, at those times did you get so mad you wanted to slug somebody?"

"I might have," he said. "If I hadn't understood the reasons, I started training for January because that's when they told me the fight would be. Then February, I think, then March. When they'd put it off I'd stop training for a week because I didn't want to reach my peak with no fight. But like you say, all those investigations and lawsuits and everything, if I was the champion I wouldn't want to take a fight until I was absolutely sure I was going to get everything I had coming."

"Johansson's the guy who copped your title, and yet you can see his side of it."

"At first I'd feel mad, when it looked like they weren't making good on the contract. Then one night I said to myself, 'Put yourself in his place!'"

Nobody Pushes Ingo

Though some fighters train eagerly in their youth, ultimately it becomes drudgery for most of them. Patterson is only 25 but he has lived like a muscular monk almost all his six years as a professional.

"It might have seemed like drudgery for some other fighters," he said, "but not for this fight. Not one day."

"Before the first match, when you'd only just met Ingemar, you said he seemed a pleasant guy. Now that you've been sitting around the table with him and the lawyers, have you any new impressions?"

"He still seems pleasant. I guess nobody pushes him around."

Ed Alqvist, who handles Johansson, said said last June's plan was to box Patterson about nine rounds, then start putting pressure on to take advantage of Ingemar's strength, which they believe greater than Floyd's. Mention of this brought up a discussion of tactics, and Patterson repeated that he has mulled over every conceivable strategy and decided at last to try everything he knows.

"He didn't feel so strong in the clinches," Floyd said. "He wasn't doing anything inside. A lot of fight men, managers and seconds, have told me they thought pressing him was the way to beat him, staying on top of him so he can't get set to throw the right hand."

"I think he can be beat that way, but I don't think it's the only way. I might press him some, I might let him lead to me some, I might bob and weave—whatever seems to be the most profit for me. I think there are ways to beat him. Whether I'm the man to do it . . ." he shrugged, smiling.

"Some of us who don't pretend to be experts," he was told, "had a suspicion a week or so before the fight that you might be trained down too fine."

Floyd hesitated. Then, "I don't want to look for excuses," he said. "I think what happened would have happened anyway. My biggest mistake was underestimating him."

Record 2,480 For U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP)—Eleven former winners and title-holders from five countries are in the record field of 2,480 seeking the 60th U.S. open golf championship this year.

Arnold Palmer, Masters champion and king of the rugged pro tour, also is in the list which includes British open champion Gary Player of South Africa, Stan Leonard of Vancouver, South African champion Dennis Hutchinson, and the Canada Cup title-holders, Peter Thomson and Ken Nagle of Australia.

The U.S. Golf Association announced the closing of the entry list Wednesday night.

A double round of 36-hole trials will reduce the entry to a compact 150 for the Denver, Colo. tournament, June 16-18.

Most top contenders will be allowed to skip the first of these eliminations—local qualifying tests in 59 cities. May 23-24. But all except a select 21 must take their chances in the sectional trials.

Leonard is among those who must qualify sectionally.

Mr. Westwood said the biggest accomplishment of the last year has been the change of relations between the sportsman and the department.

The change came about partly as a result of a monthly bulletin, from the department, which gives sportsmen an informative picture of what is going on.

RECORD KILL

Speaking of hunting, Mr. Westwood said that last season was the highest on record with 12,000 moose and 61,000 deer being taken.

Hunting pressures were up approximately four per cent with 115,000 resident hunters in the field.

The main effort of the fish and game branch will be to obtain "the greatest amount of hunting success for the greatest number of hunters in the province," Mr. Westwood said.

No sites have been decided for the games yet, Anderson said, but the matches will be played Aug. 16, 19, 22 and 25.

The Russian team will arrive in Canada either Aug. 13 or 14 and leave for home Aug. 27.

Anderson also announced an all-star Canadian team will leave for Russia Sept. 12 to play four matches there. The games will be played at Moscow, Sept. 16; Vilna, Sept. 18; Leningrad, Sept. 21; and Tbilisi, Sept. 24.

The Canadian team also will play some games in route home from Russia. These still are to be arranged.

Leonard is among those who still are to be arranged.

Mr. Westwood said that the group was formed to give local fivepin bowlers a chance to compete on a national scale. This is done through affiliation with the B.C. and Western Canada Fivepin Associations.

High school bowlers who are members of the association are presently competing in the Western Canada high school championships, bowling here under strict supervision and having their scores sent by wire for comparison and selection of the eventual champions. Competition is in singles, team and mixed team events.

The association, which has a government charter and is registered under the Societies Act, is now seeking the support of Greater Victoria bowlers.

"Being a member gives a bowler a chance to receive recognition for high scores and to compete in tournaments in his own group on both a local and national level," Jones said.

"When a date is set for a general meeting, we urge all bowlers to attend and join us."

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

There should be plenty of fun at the Victoria Gun Club's Albert Head grounds all day Sunday when the Vancouver Island trap championship shoot will be held, starting at 10 a.m.

First event will be 50-16 yard singles targets in A, B, C and D classes with the high gun to hold perpetual trophy.

Spectators are cordially invited to go out and watch the shoot and will get an opportunity to have some fun in the Calcutta event which will run concurrently with the last two shooting events.

Briefly, spectators will be able to buy their favorite shooter and the winners share the pot—70 per cent to the buyer and 30 per cent to the shooter.

One of B.C.'s greatest shooters—Dib Noble of the Victoria club—will be on hand to show his stuff. In the Lower Mainland Gun Association's Spring Tonic Open Shoot last weekend Noble won the feature all-bore skeet event with a score of 98 out of 100 and then a perfect 25 in a three-way shoot-off.

Bad news for Victoria district anglers who had so much fun with the big humpback run late last summer is that the hump run in this area is expected to be light, according to federal fisheries department reports.

On the brighter side in their forecast that this will be a fair coho year all over the Island, which to Victoria fishermen will be good news because last year the coho run practically passed up local waters.

Anyone wishing to go after the easy-to-catch humpbacks should head up to the Campbell River and Courtenay area in the latter part of August and first couple of weeks of September. Fisheries officials expect a fair to good run to the Tidwell River at Courtenay.

One project that deserves the support of outdoormen everywhere is the production of the Optimist-Ranger Association safety film, with shooting by provincial government photographic branch cameramen expected to start late this summer.

* * *

The Optimist-Ranger Association has recently been incorporated with the sole purpose of promoting safety, and $1 membership tickets may be obtained from any member of the Optimist Club, the South Vancouver Island Rangers, Inc. and most sporting goods stores. Members will get a chance to win a specially-designed 17-foot by 8-foot custom-built family trailer.

The safety film will be made available to service clubs and other organizations and Education Minister Leslie Peterson has agreed to have it placed on the school curriculum so it will be shown to school children at least once a year.

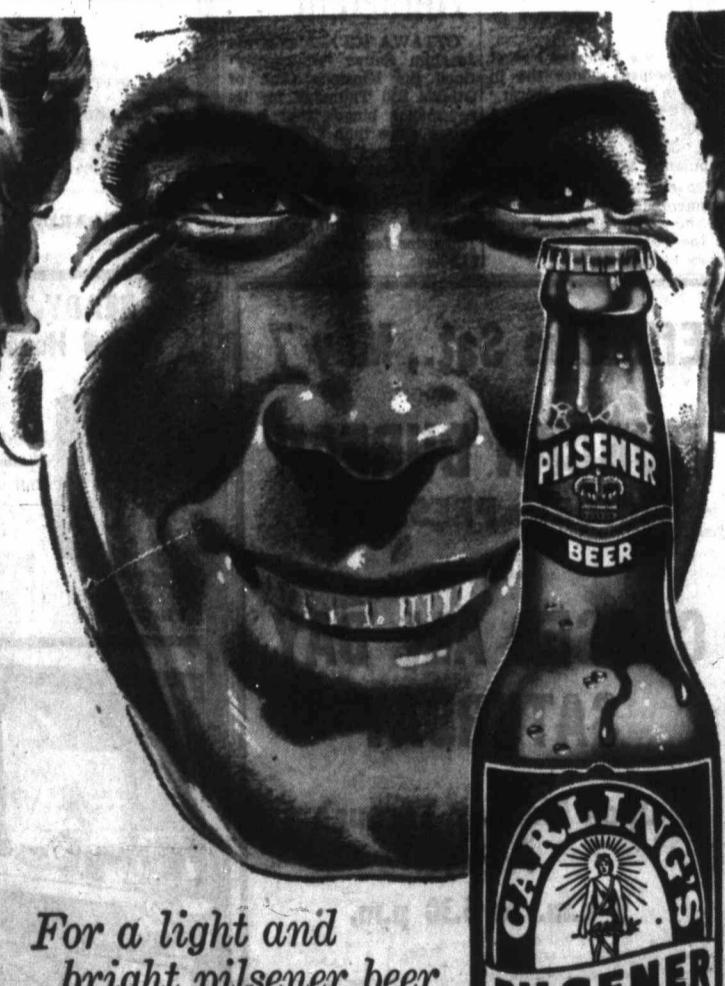

Optimist and Chief Ranger Art Mourant says that as well as the safety aspect of firearms, it has been decided to bring safety afloat into the picture. BB guns, slingshots and .22 rifles will all be covered. Much of the picture is expected to be shot at the Ranger club grounds at Luxton.

Estes Tosses Up Curve

Baseball, and Football, Target of Legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) planned today to introduce a bill aimed at encouraging a third major baseball league and to protect college football from competing pro football telecasts.

Kefauver unveiled the comprehensive measure Thursday. He said in the speech he planned to deliver to the Senate today that it would equalize the legal status of major professional team sports.

The bill would exempt the non-business aspects of pro baseball, basketball, football and hockey from the anti-trust laws and place baseball under anti-trust laws with certain exceptions, while exempting most activities of the other sports.

Kefauver said the measure was needed in light of conflicting Supreme Court decisions which exempted baseball from anti-trust statutes but placed pro football under them.

100-PLAYER LIMIT

The chairman of the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee said the bill would help the new Continental Baseball League by limiting to 100 the number of players a major league team could control—and by making it anti-trust violation to impede the formation of additional leagues which meet prescribed major league standards.

Another major provision of the bill, which is sure to meet with violent objections from major league owners, would subject all but 40 of a team's 100 players to the draft once a year. Players drafted by more than one club could choose the one they wished to join.

The new Kefauver measure also preserves baseball's traditional player reserve clause and permits all the team sports to maintain control of player contracts, team strength, player selection and assignment.

Although the bill guarantees franchise rights up to a radius of 35 miles, it exempts cities of more than two million.

TV CONTROL

The new measure also would outlaw live telecasts of pro football games into areas within 75 miles of a scheduled college game or another pro contest on any day except Sunday, unless the college or home football club granted permission.

Kefauver said he felt baseball should be under the anti-trust laws, with certain spelled-out exemptions, because it is the only major team sport which has an extensive minor leagues.

The game was adjourned Tuesday after 41 moves with Tal, playing white, a pawn up to Tchernikov. At the resumption, the champion surrendered the match without making another move.

Tal widened his lead in the 24-game series to 11½ points against Botvinnik's 7½. Tal has won six games, Botvinnik two and the other 11 have been drawn.

The result brought Tal with in one point of the 12½ points needed to clinch the title.

league set-up, and thus controls virtually all of its professional players.

The Supreme Court twice has ruled that baseball is exempt from the antitrust laws but ruled once that professional football is under them.

Kefauver pointed out that his new bill "will correct the inequity which was created by the decisions of the Supreme Court as between baseball and the other sports."

Garden Notes

Rundown Rhubarb

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

If you remember, I called your attention a couple of weeks ago to the annual Spring Garden Festival, organized for this week by the Victoria Horticultural Society. This is just a reminder, if you didn't get in on the deal yesterday, that the festival is continuing throughout today and tomorrow.

This festival takes the form of organized tours through some of the finest gardens in this district and is a unique opportunity to see not only a lot of rare and exotic plants not commonly grown hereabouts, but also some remarkably intelligent planning and layout of garden space to create interesting and satisfying vistas and effects.

These garden tours start out each day at 1 p.m. from the Victoria Publicity Bureau, 786 Government. Bus transportation is provided and the cost is $1.75 for each day.

A lot of rhubarb plants around town seem to think they should be putting on a display of bloom for the festival, for flower stalks are shooting up in many a backyard clump. Rhubarb flowers have a certain decorative value—I know of one ardent "floral art" practitioner who is quite mad about them for exotic arrangements—but such premature blooming should be regarded as a danger signal.

All is not well in the rhubarb patch when flower stalks appear so early in the season, for it is a clear indication of some unhappiness at the roots. Rhubarb, in common with many other plants, responds to a feeling of insecurity by making a frantic effort to perpetuate the race—it is nature's way of ensuring the continuation of the species.

The plants may be feeling run down and under par through lack of sleep. This plant, a native of Siberia, should really have a fair amount of frost in the soil to induce complete dormancy, and it could be that last winter's cold periods were too short to satisfy the needs of the roots.

Premature flowering also can be looked upon as a sign that the soil is exhausted, and such plants are overripe for lifting, dividing, and replanting in fresh, enriched soil. This is not the time of year to do the job, but where early flower stalks appear, the clumps should be earmarked to be shifted into new quarters this fall.

Aubrietas enjoy a good haircut and soon respond by sending out a lot of healthy side shoots.

Next, give the plants a generous feed. This may be a liquid fertilizer—soluble high-test fertilizer or fish emulsion—in water—although with rock garden plants I prefer to make up a special gritty feed of sand, peat moss and ordinary bag fertilizer. I use one bucket of coarse sand, one of peat and two cupfuls of Vigoro, well mixed together, and I make the rounds dumping a good double handful into the heart of each clipped plant, plus a little more around the edge of each clump.

You get a two-way action out of such a feed. The fertilizer supplies the nutrients, while the gritty peat-moss mixture creates a texture favorable to the development of new roots.

The Viewing World

A Fugitive from Humility

Nick Adams is a young actor who is loaded with hutzpah. (Hutzpah: an ancient Yiddish word meaning if you shoot your parents, you demand clemency in court because you're an orphan.) This is a refreshing change from all the humility that's going around show business. If Adams, who plays The Rebel in the show of the same name, has any humility, he has kept it awfully well hidden from press and public.

Adams got his start by breaking into John Ford's office during a conference and staging what amounted to a filibuster until Ford hired him, more or less to shut him up. "I figured if I talked long enough and fast enough, he'd give me a chance. He gave me a part in 'Mr. Roberts.'" That was long ago. More recently, he's been in "The FBI Story" and "Pillow Talk," got married, had a baby, and launched a career as singer and songwriter.

"A lot of record companies had approached me and finally I said what the hell, it's a buck. I got a great feeling, recording. I liked what I did. So, I decided to write a few songs about the south and then sing them... I don't exactly write the music. I don't know much about music but I've got a good idea where the French horn should go or what kind of music I want. I tell it to Dick Markowitz and he writes it."

Nick was dressed for the interview in his Rebel costume, boots and all. He's very proud of the role and owns half the show. (The other half is owned by Goodson & Todman, television's second most successful junk peddlers.)

"I walk down the street," he says, savoring every blessed moment, "and people yell 'Hey, you're the Rebel!'

You know—like guys on the girders. Guys making buildings. Rugged guys dig the show the most. They once held up a plane full of people for me in Atlanta for forty-five minutes. So I say hey, how come, and they say 'Anything for the Rebel.' He sighed, full of warm self-appreciation.

The talk turned to the movies. "They wanted me to do Studs Lonigan," he said. "It's not hard to see why, but Adams would have no part of the Farrell tough guy. 'I think people believe what they see on the screen—and if they see a guy is no good, there's no way for him to fix it up. I don't want to destroy the image the public has of me. People really believe what I do in 'The Rebel.' They actually believe I'm beating the hell out of those guys. And remember I'm no ordinary run-of-the-mill western hero. I'm not six-foot-eight; I'm five-foot-nine."

Memo from London

Steel Free for a Starlet

LONDON—Anita Ekberg's ex-mate, Anthony Steel, will be free to marry German starlet Marina Petrova in about two weeks, when his divorce from Anita becomes final. Anthony declares that he is very much on the wagon.

Eva Bartok, whose fourth mate was Curt Jurgens, also is planning to wed—but insists she won't disclose any details until after the marriage. Afraid of a jinx?

Sir Ralph Richardson, who receives $5,000 a day for three days work in the Gregory Ratoff "Oscar Wilde," will leave with Ratoff for Israel at the end of the month where both have roles in "Exodus."

James Mason, who is playing the same part as Richardson—Sir Edward Carson—in Irving Allens' "Oscar Wilde," is receiving $30,000 for his one week of work... Quoting Ratoff after a 17½-minute scene between Sir Ralph and Robert Morley: "It was like listening to a duet by Chaliapin and Caruso." That's how much in love with his picture he is!

I learned that the clothes worn by Vivien Leigh and Mary Ure in their Broadway play, "Duel of Angels," were the last job performed by Dior before his death a couple of years ago. They were designed for Vivien's appearance in the London version.

Cary Grant is smart. He changed the hotel in his "Grass is Greener" movie from Claridge's to the Savoy, where he is staying and where I am sure the grateful management has given him and wife Betty Drake a very special suite—and rate.

Showdown Shaping Up On State Medicine Vote

By GEORGE BRIMMELL
(Last of a Series)

REGINA (TNS) — Saskatchewan's coming provincial election, likely to be one of the hottest in decades, will constitute the first showdown fight in Canada over compulsory medical insurance.

And the election result may very well have an effect on Canadians in all 10 provinces.

For Premier T. C. Douglas, who has said his government will stand or fall on the issue of province-wide, compulsory, government-controlled medicine, has also predicted that if he is given a mandate to institute his medical plan, the rest of Canada will do the same.

It was Douglas' government that led the way with hospital insurance—and now he is determined to make medical care the big issue when he goes to the people in June. (The election date has not yet been set. Best guess: June 22.)

Fighting for Saskatchewan's 55 seats will be four political parties—Douglas' CCF, the Opposition Liberals, the Social Credit, and the Progressive Conservatives.

Also fighting Douglas' plan: the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons. It's in a do-or-die battle with Douglas over socialized medicine.

None of the three parties seeking to unseat the CCF is against prepaid medical insurance. They differ chiefly in degree, and method of application.

How do the four parties size up their chances at the polls? Here's how each assesses the situation:

Premier Douglas, a shade more reluctant than his rivals to make predictions, says: "I have always maintained that horse races, elections and women are completely unpredictable. I am, however, most optimistic and encouraged."

His CCF party has won its last three elections on a minority of the popular vote. Would another minority victory constitute a mandate for his medical plan?

He added, however, that "it is always possible this might make it advisable to have some other type of expression of public support for the medical plan"—possibly, but not necessarily, a plebiscite.

Said the premier: "We will, of course, ask the people to give us a clear-cut mandate—that is, over 50 per cent of the popular vote. If we don't get a majority of the popular vote, but still have a clear majority in the House, I would consider that we would have a sufficient expression of public opinion to proceed."

He added, however, that "it is always possible this might make it advisable to have some other type of expression of public support for the medical plan"—possibly, but not necessarily, a plebiscite.

Silver and Gold Box Rosses' Gift to Princess

The wedding gift of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and Mrs. Ross to Princess Margaret will be a silver and gold cigarette box made in Victoria.

Details of the gift were disclosed yesterday.

The box, 6½ by 3½ inches and two inches deep, has on its lid a gold inlay of Princess Margaret's Island—the island the province presented during her 1958 visit—and the surrounding smaller islands.

The gift cost about $300. George Bennett, owner of Carmichael's Silversmiths, worked on the box and the inlay and Ed Cushing did the engraving.

Traffic Safety Quiz No. 2

Can you find 10 traffic hazards in this picture?

Look sharp! This quiz checks more than the acuteness of your vision. It also tests your judgment of what's right and wrong in this night traffic scene. Look again—then rate yourself against the list. But keep in mind that perceiving a traffic hazard is not enough. A good driver is always prepared to take instant action to avoid trouble.

Like all good citizens, Shell is interested in safety. We urge you to be alert, drive carefully, know the rules—and obey them. Remember: about 75% of all accidents are caused by the driver—not the car.

(Each hazard is located by letter and by number. For example, J6 indicates the location of the people in the lower center of the picture where lines from J and 6 would cross.)

- 1 People wandering aimlessly in middle of street (J6, lower center)
- 2 Car parked illegally (H10, lower right)
- 3 Truck collecting garbage while in traffic lane (H8, lower right)
- 4 People stepping from in front of truck into traffic (H6, lower center)
- 5 People crossing against light (E6, center)
- 6 Car veering over the line to pass parked car (F5, center)

- 7 Car parked out from curb to pick up passengers (F4, center)
- 8 Headlight not operating on car (F4, center)
- 9 Car leaving parking lot area by entrance (F2, left center)
- 10 Car with blinding highway beams on (H4, left center)

(Those are major hazards; there are others. If you found more than ten, congratulations!)

That's why Shell says: Your Car Has Built-in Safety—YOU!

Capacity Crowd At Folk Dances

By BERT BINNY
A capacity crowd swarmed into the auditorium of Central Junior High School Wednesday evening for the folk dance concert staged by the Victoria Music Festival.

They saw items of amusement which were mostly unrehearsed, tremendous displays of technical achievement which must have demanded very lengthy rehearsal and, finally, a really arresting exposition of creative dancing which, for sensitivity both in invention and performance, would be hard to excel anywhere.

This last, entitled "Rendezvous," was presented by Grade 7 of Oaklands School. Also on view were Grade 6 of Margaret Jenkins School with 64 dancers in the "Glasgow Highlanders," the item which secured them the highest mark in the whole folk dancing division, 92.

Margaret Jenkins School was also represented by Grade 1; Quadra by Grade 2; Uplands by Grades 2 and 3; Victoria West by Grades 3 and 4; Willows by Grades 4 and 6; Sir James Douglas by Grade 5; Frank Hobbs and Lamson Street by Grade 6.

And the Katherine Costain dancers appeared in a Russian peasant dance.

FOLK DANCE
The one competitive class, the open folk dance, brought out the Garden City Folklanders and the Sons of Norway, the latter winning by 80 to 78 marks, and the evening closed with an exhibition by Ernie Livesey's proficient and entertaining Mount View square dancers.

Meanwhile, three classes in public speaking were being adjudicated by Miss Anne Mossman in St. Andrew's Hall.

Arbutus Toastmistress Club award went to Jeannie Belcher, whose mark of 81 just topped Maureen McCormick's 80.

Jack Sutherland won the Victoria Toastmasters' award.

The Victoria Toastmasters'

Club, No. 38, provided an award for the open class in impromptu public speaking.

Irene Warren, with 83, secured these laurels.

The final flourish of the music festival takes place this evening at 8 at Central Junior High auditorium. This is the schools honor performance concert, with items drawn from classes heard over the first three days of the week.

Not Best of England but Worst Preserved Here

If Victoria is preserving the English influence in its architecture, architect John Di Castro said yesterday, it is preserving the wrong part.

After an architectural commission on housing visited Victoria and shocked the community with some of its members' remarks, he told the Rotary Club, "we heard the usual banter about preserving the English influence here in rebuttal."

But, he asked, had this community learned anything from English experience and example in housing? From the principles of town planning developed in England? From "the impeccable taste the English show" in street signs and street "furniture"?

"The things we latch on to are the things discarded by England," he said.

Mr. Di Castro called for greater community interest in architecture—"We must come to realize that the building we are putting up is not only for us but affects the community as a whole . . . I think if we do a little soul-searching and begin to take interest in the buildings going up, and have the courage to make our convictions felt, then we will have civic pride that has some basis."

At the same time, he delivered some direct blows at the present situation:

"I wonder if we can really justify a lot of the housing built here . . . I mean the rows and rows of, I'll be charitable, small houses that are gradually devouring what remains of the farmland we have in the suburbs. The only motivation is quick turnover and the biggest profit the market will stand."

Majority of buildings today do not take advantage of technological developments which could bring quality with economy rather than cheapness—"They point all too well to our spiritual and cultural bankruptcy."

Lots of opportunities have been lost. The group of university buildings going up "will be the largest and could have been the most inspiring complex in our community." But because the project was "allowed to become a political football, it has ended up being another exploit in architecture by government."

'Home' Already Probed, New Move Up to Bonner

'Low Grade Moron'

Kirby's Slayer Fired at Man Once Before

Records produced at an inquest yesterday showed that a mental home "trusty" who shot and killed a Saanich policeman April 26 once tried to shoot another man in northern B.C.

The disclosure came in the waning minutes of the Robert Kirby inquest which ended shortly after 1 p.m. when the coroner's jury brought in a recommendation for an immediate investigation into the operation of the provincial mental hospital on Wilkinson Road.

GUNSHOT WOUND

The jury found that Const. Kirby was killed by a gunshot wound inflicted by Raymond Harold, a mental hospital inmate who escaped April 26 after stealing two .22-calibre rifles from the institution.

Records introduced into the inquest at the insistence of acting coroner Dr. J. H. Moore, showed that Harold was committed for mental care at Fort St. John, B.C., on Aug. 13, 1934, after procuring a 9-mm. Luger pistol with which to terminate an altercation with a man identified only as "Weaver."

BOTH MISSES

Excerpts from the records were read to the inquest by mental home's superintendent Dr. L. G. C. d'Easum, who said Harold was said to have fired two shots at the man, both misses, before being disarmed.

In later testimony Dr. d'Easum said that Harold's sister once advised him that this was wrong, and that the fire had been with a .22 rifle and directed at a boy who was teasing two girls.

She told him, he testified, that "Rayney" was always ready to go to the protection of young ladies."

ESCAPE BRIEFLY

The medical superintendent, reviewing Harold's history at the mental home, said that he had escaped briefly in 1941 and on returning told a fictitious tale of having knocked a man down and bound him with rope.

He said Harold is a "low grade moron" with the mind of an eight-year-old.

Answering questions from Saanich police counsel Lloyd McKenzie, he said it was possible for patients with grounds privileges to wander away from the institution without being seen.

11 ESCAPES

The institution has a record of only 11 escapes in 13 years, he stated.

Dr. d'Easum said there had been "practically no change" in the operation of the Wilkinson Road institution since the death of the policeman.

"Well, did you put another gun back in the cupboard?" asked Coroner Moore.

When the superintendent failed to answer a juror remarked, "If conditions were the same there would be a gun there."

UNLOCKED PIGGYBANK

One of the two guns stolen by Harold was taken from an unlocked cupboard of the mental home's piggybank.

Asked why he had told Saanich police that Harold was "dangerous when aroused" when earlier testimony indicated he was quite harmless, the superintendent replied: "He was a low-grade moron and I had been told he might have a gun."

Small Boy Admits He Started Fire

An eight-year-old boy has admitted to Saanich police that he was responsible for starting a fire which yesterday threatened the lives of more than 30 Grade 3 school children.

Firemen called to the Cadboro Bay Scout Hall on Penrhyn where classes are held for eight-year-old students from nearby Frank Hobbs Elementary School, found a wad of burned paper, said Saanich deputy fire chief Glen Robbins.

The fire was caught in time, about 15 feet away and one foot from the side of the building, firemen found another wad of burned paper, said Saanich deputy fire chief Glen Robbins.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: There's a certain woman in our crowd who is attractive in a cheap, sexy way. None of the wives like her. The husbands think she's fascinating.

She went to college with my husband and she knew him before I did. Whenever a woman with an animated personality—so punctuate sentences to have a lot to talk about. The other evening at a party I watched her closely. She winked at my husband across the room several times and it looked very clubby to me. I said nothing but I didn't like it.

Please tell me what does a wink really mean? — SUSPICIOUS.

Dear Suspicious: There are a variety of winks. Each has its own special meaning. The most harmless is the Therapeutic Wink which occurs when a cinder or some other foreign object gets in the eye. I suspect the wink you're writing about falls in the Innocuous Conversational "Wife-Worrying" category.

Statue Has No Clothes

Dear Ann: I'm going to be said it's impossible because in a few months and I'm planning a girl-boy party. The problem is we don't have a recreation room so we'll have to dance out on the patio. It has a tile floor. We can't dance on carpets.

The big problem is the statue out there. It's a girl without any clothes on. The boys would raise a riot with that thing in the middle of the room.

I asked my father to take it out for the evening but he hardly notice it.

Rusty Nail Menace

Dear Ann: Recently our five-year-old daughter injured her leg on a rusty nail box which is nailed to a bannister in our apartment house. She slid down the bannister though I've warned her repeatedly not to do this. The result was 40 stitches in her leg.

My husband said it was her own fault. I said the landlady should not have such a menace on her property. The doctor bill was big and it set us back plenty.

Last week another child had the identical accident. My husband seemed shocked when he heard the parents are suing the landlady. He says the people

Artistic Ability Develops in Stages

By EDITH HENRY

In their physical development, all normal children go through orderly steps. We expect them to sit before they stand; stand before they walk; and so on.

In the development of artistic ability, there are regular steps, too. Of these we have not been so aware.

The day a child first walks, we spread the good news joyfully.

But the day he draws a single straightish line, or a circle-ish circle, we pass by unnoticed. Yet this marks an advancing step in his artistic career.

A former article has described the pre-two-year period with its free smooth scribbling; its whole body and arm movement, and its unconcern about direction or paper's edge.

With the passing of the second birthday, if we watch carefully, we see a change.

The child's work is more controlled. He uses less body and arm movement, and more wrist action.

His eyes follow his work. His mind seems to begin to direct eye and hand.

He is no longer simply recording a rhythmic muscular action. He is now intentionally drawing.

He chooses the part of his paper to work on, a place to start a line, its direction and its ending. Because his hand has not too much muscular control as yet, the line is wobbly rather than smooth as it was at an earlier stage.

He may direct his line so that it meets its starting point thus enclosing a space. This introduces the next

Mrs. Ross to Wear Pink Chiffon, Mink

By JUDITH AYER

LONDON (CP) — Those lucky enough to be in Westminster Abbey today will see, along with the splendor of the royal wedding, a colorful and elegant collection of the best from Europe's fashion houses.

And Canada will be well represented in this array of fashionable women's clothes. Some examples:

Mrs. Diefenbaker will be wearing a white paper taffeta dress with shadowy print tones of mulberry and green. A large green net hat, green shoes and white gloves and bag will complete her outfit.

Mrs. George Drew, wife of the high commissioner in London, will wear a dress of Italian silk in a royal blue and black print with a picture neckline and straight skirt. A large black straw hat and matching shoes and bag will add the final touch.

MATERIAL LIST

COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS.

This plan embodies all the advantages of fir-ply wood construction and is excellent for fishing on bays, lakes, or streams.
It is relatively fast and holds four people comfortably.

It is sturdy with 3/4"
marine grade Douglas fir plywood planking on sides and bottom. Yet it is easy to build as planking with plywood means a single panel forms each side with two panels covering the bottom.

As the initial step in preparing to build this plywood boat, make a thorough study of the plans, noting carefully
the construction details of each station, and reviewing the materials listed in the fir-plywood and lumber order.

Obtain the required plywood, lumber and other materials from your local retail lumber dealer.

In ordering plywood, be sure to specify Douglas fir-plywood which has completely water proof bond for all outdoor and marine applications.

Good Life for Whites

Glittering Durban Blinds Critics of Apartheid

By KEN McTAGGART

DURBAN (TNS) — This is the playground of South Africa, the glittering Miami of the white people, and the symbol of why a "baaskaap" government suffers little more than lip-service opposition to its racial policies.

It is the evidence of the good life, good meaning, pleasant, obediently served and secure.

Good for a white man! With jobs rigidly reserved under control laws, anyone but a wholly worthless white man has it good.

Strung along a lovely crescent of seashore are the hotels, some of them rivaling the glossiest of Miami Beach's Golden Mile.

From the bedroom of my hotel (300 rooms, all with bath), can be seen a dozen others ranging up to a towering 800-room, palatial structure.

Service, too, rivals Miami; ring for tea and it arrives in moments because every hotel is packed with attendants each at a few pounds a month and a chance at tips.

All this serves a population of only 3,000,000. There are gest part of these only that number who are en-weeks or more every year.

This does not mean professional or business families by the distorted history and only. For instance, the building racial studies she had to teach, in advance is difficult. Where weeks every year for the customers come from? days for bricklayers, carpenters, South Africa does not stinters and so on.

It is the evidence of the itself on holidays. In addition, So everybody has time and to the 12 statutory holidays, money to take lengthy vaca-most people get at least a tions, usually twice a year.

A young English school teacher who came here four years ago, and was horrified by the distorted history and racial policies, do little more than express regret.

She was amazed at my wonderment when she explained she takes three weeks in summer, two in the winter. Why, she said, everybody gets that much time, usually plus a long leave of three to six months every five years.

That is why thousands of people, who would normally be horrified by this country's racial policies, do little more than express regret.

I was directed to a wealthy manufacturer here who is known as a leader in liberal thought and a friend of the natives.

When I asked him why he had not come out strongly as an opponent of apartheid, a light meal, immediately before retiring, may help persons who suffer from insomnia.

While Shells Churned Sea

Ammunition Boys Cried

Old Admiral Recalls First Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — When the first shells from the German cruisers began to churn the sea into a fury around his ship, the young Canadian lieutenant aboard HMS Caradoc had no time to savor his first taste of battle.

"I was too busy chasing the ammunition carriers into action," said Rear Admiral Victor Brodeur (Ret.). "Most of

I was drenched with spray. Yet we weren't hit once."

"I believe the only direct hit we recollect was on the German cruiser Konigsberg. The shell landed in the messroom and failed to explode. When the Konigsberg surrendered with the German fleet in 1918 we found the shell aboard her, nicely polished and mounted."

Rear Admiral Victor Brodeur, CB, CBE, CD, spent 38 years in the Royal Canadian Navy in a career that also took him into battles against Bolsheviks, thrust him into the midst of a South American revolution and eventually exposed him to quiet rigors of a Washington desk.

Born in Balaclava, Que., he was part of the six-cadet nucleus of the RCN in 1909.

When the Canadian navy officially came into being 50 years ago he became a midshipman aboard the cruiser Niobe.

In 1911 he was sent to Britain to join HMS Dreadnought.

In 1914-15, as a lieutenant, he served aboard the cruiser HMS Berwick in the West Indies squadron. Returning to join Caradoc, he witnessed the surrender of the German fleet.

"It was a sad sight for any man. They were very fine ships."

The German fleet later scuttled itself off Scapa Flow.

In 1931 he was a commander with two RCN destroyers, Vancouver and Fraser, under his command them were 15 to 17 years old and were down below crying their eyes out."

Admiral Brodeur, 67, a member of the Royal Canadian Navy when it was founded just half a century ago on May 6, 1910, vividly remembers that first action in 1917.

"The shells were falling on either side of the ship, so close off Panama, he landed a small force in revolt-torn Salvador to protect British interests.

He was officer commanding the Pacific Coast from 1938 to 1940, served as a captain early in the Second World War as naval attaché in Washington, then returned to the Pacific Coast in 1943 as rear admiral. He retired in 1947.

Now he lives in Vancouver with his wife, Dorothy. His two sons, Nigel and Philip, are both in the services.

Not the least among the changes in the RCN's first 50 years, he believes, is in discipline.

"If we retained the sort of discipline, including the 'cat,' we had in the earlier days, we'd have a mutiny on our hands."

Public Snubs Critics, Wild About Wedding

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth yesterday ordered the abbey while Margaret, Tony went through the rehearsal. The divorced parents of the Queen, the Queen Mother, Queen Ingrid, the only one seated among royalty at giving the bride away. Dr. accept an invitation, will sit in the first row at the wedding with the immediate members of the British royal family.

Antony Armstrong-Jones be the Duke of Edinburgh who of Europe's ruling royalty to seat Margaret a refund to critics of the marriage.

Another score for the young couple was chalked up when 500 persons massed before Buckingham Palace in a tumultuous demonstration of affection for the princess. She was attending a pre-wedding dinner and ball given for her and Armstrong-Jones by the Queen.

The Queen's decision on Armstrong-Jones' parents came as Tony and Margaret went to Westminster Abbey yesterday for a final dress rehearsal of the wedding. They slept late after Wednesday night's festivities, then went to the abbey with their friends in a procession of 14 cars.

Resorts Cut Prices For Joneses

PRESTATYN, Wales (Reuters) — Anyone named Jones can have a cut-rate vacation here in September under a plan announced Thursday by local boardinghouse-keepers as a tribute to Antony Armstrong-Jones, who married Princess Margaret today.

This seaside resort will cut prices for Joneses.

"We plan to hold competitions to find the champion Jones bowler and golfer," he said.

"Girls will be able to compete for the honor of being the country's most glamorous Jones."

Wedding Party Gowns Are Long

LONDON (Reuters) — Details of the dresses which Princess Margaret's sister, mother and aunt wore at her wedding today were officially announced Thursday night.

All were long. Queen Elizabeth wore turquoise blue faille. Queen Mother Elizabeth appeared in luxurious gold lame. The Duchess of Kent—Margaret's aunt—was in sequined primrose yellow lace and tulle over matching satin.

These details were announced by royal dressmaker Norman Hartnell.

Not Sulking But No Gift

WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba isn't sending a wedding present to Princess Margaret, because she didn't visit the province during her royal tour of Canada in 1958.

It is somehow sad to think that the morning paper will no longer bear the old familiar headlines:

"No Beau for Margaret" . . . "Princess Dances Till Dawn" . . . Prelate Criticizes Princess."

No more can-can dances at the American Embassy. Fewer champagne parties in Mayfair salons. Above all, a little less of the harmless little-tattle, the hard-to-pin-down rumor, the faintly deprecating remark.

Somehow, things won't seem so gay if the fairy-tale Princess, in line with prediction, gently disengages herself from the royal routine and settled down to a quiet married life with Tony Armstrong-Jones.

A champagne quality will be missing. Whatever the critics may say, there can be no denying that the Princess with personality plus has helped to brighten life in post-war Britain.

"I hope," he told a small army of reporters at the abbey, "that you will all remember that for a woman this is the greatest day of her life."

No Income Tax by '65 Nikita Tells Russians

MOSCOW (UPI)—A five-year plan abolishing the Soviet Union's income tax by 1965 was announced Thursday by Premier Nikita Khrushchev in his speech to the Supreme Soviet. Khrushchev also said that the government plans to reduce the Russian working day to five to six hours by 1964.

Plane Hit Russia Snaps At U.S.

MOSCOW (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev, in a blistering pre-summit attack on the United States, announced Thursday that Russian forces shot down an American plane Sunday on Soviet defense ministry orders. He said Soviet rockets are ready to retaliate against future incidents.

The Soviet premier told Parliament that the presence of the American plane over Soviet territory was an "aggressive act" intended to frighten the Russians in advance of the summit.

TAKING ACTION

"One must conclude that aggressive forces in the United States are taking action to interfere with the summit," Khrushchev said.

Khrushchev warned U.S. allies that nations with U.S. bases must realize they can receive retaliatory blows.

Khrushchev blasted President Eisenhower's suggestion that Vice-President Richard Nixon might sit in for him at the summit if the president has to return to Washington. Khrushchev, saying Nixon could hardly be thought of as a man interested in ending the cold war, commented:

GOAT, CABBAGE

"I am afraid that if Nixon becomes entitled to carry on negotiations at the summit, it would be, as we say in Russia, like sending a goat to take care of the cabbage."

He said Eisenhower had informed him he could devote only seven days to the summit talks. This time limit "seemed to show that there are certain U.S. circles restricting Eisenhower's freedom of movement," Khrushchev observed.

Plane Unarmed

U.S. Pilot May Have Blacked Out

WASHINGTON — The United States indicated Thursday the "bandit" U.S. military plane Soviet Premier Khrushchev boasted was shot down on a mission of intimidation actually was an unarmed weather study craft whose civilian pilot may have blacked out.

"It is entirely possible that having a failure in the oxygen equipment which could result in the pilot losing consciousness, the plane continued on automatic pilot for a considerable distance and accidentally violated Soviet air space," the state department said.

Congress members were outraged by Khrushchev's charge and the truculence he displayed.

Senator Styles Bridges questioned whether Eisenhower ought now to go to the summit meeting.

Nine or Ten Victims of Tornado

WILBURTON, Okla. (AP)—At least nine or 10 persons were killed Thursday night when a tornado ripped into this eastern Oklahoma college town. Elmer Durant, chief of police at McAlester, 33 miles westward, radioed:

"Nine or 10 are dead that we know of and there may be more."

It is entirely possible that having a failure in the oxygen equipment which could result in the pilot losing consciousness, the plane continued on automatic pilot for a considerable distance and accidentally violated Soviet air space," the state department said.

Public Snubs Critics, Wild About Wedding

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Queen was assigned to guard the and Queen Ingrid of Denmark Elizabeth yesterday ordered abbey while Margaret, Tony, went through the rehearsal that the divorced parents of the Queen, the Queen Mother, Queen Ingrid, the only one Antony Armstrong Jones be the Duke of Edinburgh who of Europe's ruling royalty to seated among royalty at is giving the bride away—Dr. accept an invitation, will sit Tony's wedding today to Princess Margaret a rebuff to critics of the marriage.

Another score for the young couple was chalked up when 50,000 persons massed before Buckingham Palace in a tumultuous demonstration of affection for the princess. She was attending a pre-wedding dinner and ball given for her and Armstrong Jones by the Queen.

The Queen's decision on Armstrong Jones' parents came as Tony and Margaret went to Westminster Abbey yesterday for a final dress rehearsal of the wedding. They slept late after Wednesday night's festivities, then went to the abbey with their friends in a procession of 14 cars.

Resorts Cut Prices For Joneses

PRESTATYN, Wales (Reuters) — Anyone named Jones can have a cut-rate vacation here in September under a plan announced Thursday by local boardinghousekeepers as a tribute to Anthony Armstrong-Jones, who married Princess Margaret today.

This seaside resort will cut prices for Joneses.

"We plan to hold competitions to find the champion Jones bowler and golfer," he said.

"Girls will be able to compete for the honor of being the country's most glamorous Jones."

Margaret 'Retires'

Gossipers to Miss Headline-Maker

Not Sulking But No Gift

WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba isn't sending a wedding present to Princess Margaret, because she didn't visit the province during her royal tour of Canada in 1958.

Provincial officials emphasized that the province isn't still sulking. It's a question of protocol.

LONDON (CP) — For those who have kept an eye on royal Princess Margaret's marriage may cause mixed feelings.

It's nice to know she is marrying the man of her choice, but for onlookers there is an underlying note of nostalgia.

It is somewhat sad to think that the morning paper will no longer bear the old familiar headlines:

"No Beau for Margaret" . . . "Princess Dances Till Dawn" . . . Prelate Criticizes Princess...

No more can dances at the American Embassy. Fewer champagne parties in Mayfair salons. Above all, a little less of the harmless titillating, the hard-to-pin-down rumor, the faintly deprecating remark.

Somewhat, things won't seem so gay if the fairytale Princess, in line with prediction, gently disengages herself from the royal routine and settled down to a quiet married life with Tony Armstrong-Jones.

A champagne quality will be missing. Whatever the critics may say, there can be no denying that the Princess with personality plus has helped to brighten life in post-war Britain.

in the first row at the wedding with the immediate members of the British royal family.

This is to the right of the sanctuary. On the opposite side, Ronald Armstrong-Jones, Tony's father, and his divorced wife, the Countess of Rosse, will sit in the first row of a group which includes members of the Yugoslav and German royal houses and relatives of Queen Elizabeth.

Thousands thronged the route of the royal processions yesterday, jamming traffic in the centre of London. On the sidewalks, the first of the many who will come to see the wedding procession began to camp out for the 24-hour wait until the princess rides by in her glass coach on her way to be married.

The dean of Westminster, describing the ancient abbey as "the central shrine of the English-speaking peoples," said before the rehearsal that he would say a prayer at the ceremony for children to be granted to the union of Margaret and Tony.

"I hope," he told a small army of reporters at the abbey, "that you will all remember that for a woman this is the greatest day of her life."
